THE CATACOMBS.

A correspondent, writing from Rome, says: "Fancy a narrow subterranean walk, varying from two to seven feet in width, twisting into a thousand angles and three hundred and fifty miles in length. Such were the ancient catacombs. They have been filled in, walled up, and left to their eternal night, many of them; some of the underground trails have been lost or forgotten these thousand years, but St. Calixtus is still a marvel, full of mystery and horrors and romance. No one ventures into its labyrinth without an expert guide, and the number and length of the wax tapers that are necessary to complete a successful exploration is simply alarming. In the midst of a meadow we found a pair of steps that led us into the bowels of the earth.

The guide unlocked the door at the foot of the stairs and our party entered; the door was locked after us, the lights were lit, the guide led us into a dark alley that smelt warm and earthy; one after another, in silence, we cracked that guide through avenues that seemed endless, for the shadows crowded in upon us oppressively and our tapers burned but feebly. Up stairs and down stairs, to right and left, we wandered like a band of lost spirits. We hung on to each other's coat tails, and grew more and more intimate, as we felt our hold on life and our dependence on the remorseless man who was burying us alive, increase. What if our lights went out or he was to desert us? What if the earth should fall—the soft tufted rock that you could scratch with your thumbnail? It grew uncomfortably hot; it was not pleasant to have the whole party crowding on to your heels, nor pleasant to be in the midst of it with no chance of escape in case of a panic; but it was worse than all to be the last man, who was half the time around the corner in darkness, and liable to drop into chaos or oblivion at the shortest notice. There were several small chapels, with the remains of altars and half obliterated frescoes to be inspected. Many a Pope has slept here his final sleep, and many a saint and martyr; but the bones of these revered ones have been more gorgeously enshrined and the dark city of the dead is now nearly deserted.

It was in these winding ways that "Miriam" of the Marble Faun met her dismal doom; it was here that Hans Andersen's "Improvisatore" had his adventure with the young artist, and here is laid much of the scene of that most fascinating and patriotic story "Fabiola." How congregations of worshippers ever survived the unholly darkness of these tombs I know not; yet in the third century Christian Rome was driven like hares to these burrows. Here they worshipped, lived, died and were buried.

WOMEN STOCK BROKERS.—Among the most curious types of Paris life are the women stock brokers, the female gamblers, both bulls and bears. They are not allowed inside the Bourse, its rules excluding women and children. They are therefore forced to promenade under the trees, like the old Greek philosophers. The character of these brokers is on the whole repulsive; they are often retired cooks or housekeepers, and though better perhaps than Woodhull and Claflin, their appearance is not agreeable. They are generally from forty to seventy years of age. They never wear other than second hand clothes, being guided solely in the selection by the fact that it is necessary to have some; their dresses are short—sometimes bought so; sometimes the end becomes frayed, and a reef is taken in. They wear wooden shoes or sabots, in many cases varnished, and their umbrellas date from the rainy season of the time of Noah. Some have spectacles in which they look still more hideous; all have gloves out at the finger ends. On the arm hangs a bag containing the scrip and money in which they deal, for all transactions take place on the spot; together with paper to note the hourly fluctuations in the funds and to record business done; their pencils are cut at both ends in the expectation they will last longer. They are in rapport with scouts in every way in keeping with themselves who are constantly prowling under the peristyle to overhear the gossip of brokers, touts and clients, and bringing the news to the female world—tapping one on the shoulder, retiring apart, and communicating some astounding piece of intelligence. It is remarked that bachelors in Paris, when feeling themselves smitten, visit this part of the Bourse, and in three minutes find themselves cured of the headache.

THE MILLINER PRINCESS.—An English judge lately had before him a case entitled Turner vs. Bonaparte, in which motion was made for an injunction against Prince Pierre Napoleon Bonaparte and his wife, Justine Elanora Nina Bonaparte, his wife. The plaintiff was Mrs. Turner, formerly a milliner at 91, New Bond street, London, who, by her bill, stated that in 1872 the Princess was residing in this country and carrying on the business of a milliner at No. 91 New Bond street, and about the close of that year had purchased Mrs. Turner's business, (but without paying the purchase money,) and continued to carry it on with her own. The bill stated further that the plaintiff had lately discovered that the Princess had entered into a contract to dispose of the business, and was about to leave for Belgium without paying the plaintiff. She accordingly moved for an injunction to restrain the Princess and Princess from parting with the business and stock in trade, or with certain pictures which it was said had been deposited with Messrs. Morant, of No. 91 New Bond street, as security for the purchase money. The Princess is at present residing at Rochfort, in Belgium. The vice-chancellor made an interim order in the matter. Prince Pierre, it will be remembered, was a source of continual trouble to his late ex-imperial cousin when the latter was at the Tuilleries.

BREAKFAST FOR WORKING GIRLS.—The Women's Industrial Society of New York announced that they will furnish a breakfast of bread and coffee to working girls, every morning at a charge of five cents for each person. The society in making the announcement state: "Many girls have no cheerful homes or boarding places, and are often obliged to go out to their work without warm or palatable food, and we are seeking to supply this want by opening our rooms at an hour when they can avail themselves of the advantage we believe we shall afford them."

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. Its action is effectively, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for FORTY YEARS, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR, OR MEDICINE.
Is harmless,
Is no drastic violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,
Is a faultless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind,
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

The Montpelier Female Humane Association, chartered by the Legislature of Virginia and the Circuit Court of Orange county, proposes, by a series of Grand Gift Concerts, to establish and endow a "Home for the Old, Infirm and Destitute Ladies of Virginia," at Montpelier, the former residence of President James Madison. The Association is under the control of eight trustees, six of whom are elected annually by the stockholders and two appointed by the Governor of Virginia.

Governor's Office, Richmond, July 3, 1874. It affords me pleasure to say that I am well acquainted with a large majority of the officers of the Montpelier Female Humane Association who reside in the vicinity of my home, and I attest their intelligence and their worth and high reputation as gentlemen, as well as the public confidence, influence and substantial means liberally represented among them.

Alexandria, Va., July 8th, 1874.
My personal acquaintance with a majority of the gentlemen controlling the Montpelier Female Humane Association and the reputation of all of them enables me to commend them as fully entitled to the confidence of the public. No act or representation inconsistent with honor and integrity need be apprehended in the conduct or representations of these gentlemen.

R. W. HUGHES,
U. S. Judge East. Dis. of Va.

SUMMER RESORTS.

THE REVERIDGE HOUSE,
Middleburg, Virginia.
The undersigned has "leased" this fine Hotel,
and will open it for the reception of guests on the 1st of July, 1874.

It is a large and handsome house of 25 rooms;
the parlor, dining room and chambers are large and airy, and furnished in good style.
Middleburg is one of the prettiest and most healthy towns in Piedmont Virginia. It is situated in Loudoun county, 40 miles from Washington city, 10 miles from Leesburg, and 8 miles from the Plains station, O. & A. M. R. R., from which two points there are daily stages
over well graded turnpike roads.

A MINERAL SPRING near the town has afforded many cures of Dyspepsia, and is promoted by the physicians of this section to be equal to any water in the State for this kind of disease.

The house will be kept in the best style, and every effort will be made to give entire satisfaction, and the charges will be moderate.
A LIVERY STABLE and BAR will be attached, and the Bar will be furnished with the best Wines, Liquors, Cigars, &c., that can be procured in the country.
